TUESDAY, DEC. 8, 1926

The traffic on "new" Third street is tremendous, and is growing every day. It is now the thoroughfare of the city. Having at all hours of the day a brisk movement of all sorts of vehicles.

MAJOR MCKINLEY was kept so busy Sunday, answering his door bell, that he did not get to attend church, as was his desire. His onerous duties have only just begun and he doesn't even have one day of rest.

ONE of the society debutantes in Washington this winter will be Miss Vivian Sartoris, a grand daughter of General Grant. She was born in London, but thanks to her good sense has never become an Anglomaniac.

An interesting fight for supremacy in the iron and steel business of America will soon be on between Andrew Carnegie and John D. Rockefeller, the Standard Oil King. The latter gentleman has just completed the purchase of a large tract of land in South Chicago, on the shore of Lake Michigan, and he will erect upon the premises a steel and iron plant to cost from ten to twenty millions of dollars.

HER HOME MORTGAGED AWAY.

Mrs. Irvine, of Belpre, Deceived by a Worthless Son.

A despicable piece of work and one which shows the infidelity of a worthless son has just come to light by the foreclosure of a mortgage on the home of Mrs. Esther Irvine, of Belpre.

Several years ago while visiting her son at Marietta, Mrs. Irvine, who is an aged and ignorant colored woman, placed her mark to a document at the solicitation of her son and thereby signed away her little home which she had toiled so many years to pay for. Some time later the son got in trouble and mortgaged the property he had falsely gotten from his mother, for all it was worth to get money to defend himself. He was however convicted of the crime with which he was charged and was sent to the Columbus penitentiary for a term of years.

In this position he has been, of course, unable to make any money toward paying off the mortgage and the result is that his mother was informed Saturday to move out of her home.

This was the first knowledge she had ever had of the affair which makes it all the harder for her. Being of all ages when she is no longer able to work and having no one to take care of her she will now go to the County Infirmary to end her days.—Parkersburg Journal.

OUR COAST DEFENSES.

Governor Bushnell Appoints Delegates to a Convention.

The governor has appointed T. Ewing Miller, of this city, David H. Moore, of Athens, and Percy Wiles, of Zanesville, as delegates to a convention at Tampa, Florida, January 20, to consider some means of defense of the southern harbors and sea coasts. These gentlemen spend the winters in Florida each year, and can serve on the commission without inconvenience to themselves. The convention is a national one, and those who have conceived the scheme have hopes of securing recognition of each state in the union.—Columbus Dispatch.

THE OGDEN FIELD.

In the Ogden field things are rather quiet for some reason, but considerable preparation has been made for winter drilling. The Elcho Oil Company has considerable work planned for the winter as has also the Union and Mountain State Gas Co.

The Mountain State Gas Co.'s No. 2 Loye, Killduff & Co.'s No. 4 Dyke have caused considerable interest in the portion of the field which had all along been considered on the edge. The two wells, however, proved that the limit in that direction has not yet been reached. The Mountain State Gas Co. has located No. 3 Loye and are getting ready to drill it at once. Killduff & Co. have made three new locations and are getting timber on the ground, but the rigs have not been started. On the Darling farm the drillers are still struggling with the lost tools and after four weeks fishing are no nearer recovering them than when they started.

Hires are not dangerous to life, but they are a prolific breeder of misery and profanity. Doan's Ointment gives instant relief, even in the worst cases of this and other exasperating diseases of the skin.

GEN. WEYLER

To Issue a Decree to the Citizens of Cuba,

Ordering Every Able Bodied Man on the Island to Join the Army.

This News Causes Many Young Men to Join the Insurgents—Outside Havana Famine is Beginning to Spread—Many Are Dying From Hunger.

New York, Dec. 7.—The Sun Sunday morning prints the following: The Spaniards here say that General Weyler intends to issue a decree ordering every able-bodied man from 18 years to 50 to enlist in the army, and to take the field against the insurgents. This news has created such an excitement among Cuban families that the number of young men who have joined the insurgent forces within the past few days is greater than at any time since the beginning of the war. A circular has been quietly issued to the Cubans, which says: "No man of honor can doubt which side he must take if placed by the tyranny of the Spanish government in the position of choosing between Spain and Cuba libre."

El Pueblo says: "Gen. Weyler's duty is to issue that decree. We ought to know here who is a Spaniard and who is a conspirator. Havana is full of Spain's enemies masquerading under the guise of Spaniards. Let us know who is friend and who is enemy. Masks off."

But the real motive of Weyler with regard to this decree has not been mentioned above. It is a fact that the 18,000 soldiers recently sent by Spain are not enough to cover all the losses of the Spanish army within the past few weeks. More than that, it is said that high military authorities here are concealing from Spain the knowledge of more than half of the army's losses for the purpose of continuing to draw from the treasury the wages and allowances of the dead men. It is estimated that from April, 1925, to last November more than $30,000,000 have been stolen from the Spanish treasury in this way. The number of soldiers in the field is less than the central government believes, and is not sufficient for Weyler's plan of campaign, which is simply to march against the insurgents in heavy bodies.

Outside of Havana famine is beginning to spread. In Remedios, province of Pinar del Rio, more than 10,000 persons are dying of hunger. In Cardenas poverty is so great that families who were wealthy before the war are now begging in the streets. In Cienfuegos, an opulent city until 1925, the misery is also great, and here in Havana famine is expected soon, as a consequence of Weyler's methods of warfare and his destruction of all the provisions in the country districts.

LABOR COMBINATION.

A Movement to Organize the Building Trades of the Country Started.

St. Louis, Dec. 7.—One of the greatest labor organizations that the world has ever known has just had its inception in this city. It is a universal building trades union and includes the labor of every artisan from the digging of a foundation to the last touch upon a building. There met here Sunday representatives of building trades from many cities at the call of the local building trades council. The whole matter of building construction was discussed. Mr. H. W. Steinbliss, secretary of the St. Louis building trades council, is authority for the statement that two and a half million people are interested in the movement. It is not proposed to antagonize the employers of skilled labor but to show them the benefits of co-operation with the laborers who create wealth. The aims of the organization certainly consider the interests of the employer as well as the employee.

North Dakota's Official Returns.

BISMARCK, N. D., Dec. 7.—The official returns for North Dakota, long delayed by the storms of the past two weeks, have finally all arrived at the state capitol and are in the hands of the secretary of state. The official canvass will be made on Tuesday. The total vote of the state was 47,351, of which McKinley received 26,330, Bryan 20,689 and Levering 336. There were no Palmer or Matchett electors in North Dakota. McKinley's plurality is 5,647. Johnson, rep. for congress, was elected by 4,160.

The Six-Days' Bicycle Race.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden was started shortly after midnight Sunday night in the presence of a big crowd of spectators. Much interest is taken in the event owing to the international character lent by the presence of the long-distance British and French riders, of whom Tom Linton, the Welsh champion, Charley Chapple, the English long-distance crack, and Jules Dubois, of Paris-Bordeaux race fame, are the stars.

Getting Ready for Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 7.—Activity is continued here at the navy yard. The cruiser Brooklyn is being hurriedly outfitted, and the Vesuvius, Montonomah and other old monitors are being rapidly repaired.

Condensed Testimony.

Chas. B. Hood, Broker and Manufacturer's Agent, Columbus, Ohio, certifies that Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal as a cough remedy. J. D. Brown, Prop. St. James Hotel, Ft. Wayne, Ind., testifies that he was cured of a Cough of two years standing, caused by La Grippe, by Dr. King's New Discovery. B. P. Merrill, Baldwinville, Mass., says that he has used and recommended it and never knew it to fail and would rather have it than any doctor, because it always cures. Mrs. Hemming, 223 E. 25th St., Chicago, always keeps it at hand and has no fear of Croup, because it instantly relieves. Free Trial Bottles at W. H. Syer's Drug Store.

RAILWAY WRECK.

A Conductor's Forgetfulness Cost Three Lives and the Injury of Several People.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 7.—At 7:30 Monday morning a special train bearing the officials of the B. & O. & B. & O. S. W. roads left the Grand Central on a five days' inspection trip of the road. The train was in charge of Engineer John Price, Fireman Homer Dixon, Conductor Sam Elswick and brakemen Charles Chapman and Robert McNeely. Aboard the special was General Superintendent Raw, General Traffic Manager Randolph, General Passenger Agent Chesbrough, Coal Traffic Manager W. W. Peabody, Jr., Chief Engineer Carrothers, Superintendent McMahon, of the Mississippi division, Train Master Mills, Superintendent of Telegraph Horace Johnson, Press Agent James H. Maddy and a dozen more minor officials and passenger and freight agents. The conductor and engineer of the special had orders to run 50 minutes behind the regular westbound passenger train and to sidetrack at Storrs station to allow the Cochran accommodation, due in this city at eight o'clock, to pass by. How they happened to forget their orders is not known, but forget they did. When the special reached Storrs station, just below Sedamsville, Engineer Price stopped a moment.

Then he started off again. Some one aboard the special who knew the orders and realized that a mistake was being made, grabbed for the bell-rope.

Just at this instant the engine of the special sped by Price's home on Mt. Hope road. Mrs. Price was standing in the door and as the train sped by her husband waved her a good-by. She threw him a kiss just as the whistle of the incoming Cochran special blew for the stop at Storrs station. The crash which crushed out the lives of three men came within sight of Mrs. Price, whose husband was crushed in his own engine. He died a moment after being taken out.

The engines came together with a crash that was heard a mile away and both were telescoped, as were the tenders and first cars of both trains. There were 52 passengers on the incoming train, but only one was killed outright.

He was L. Zeperwick, a civil engineer, who has been in the employ of the B. & O. S. W. railroad for the past two years. Homer Dixon, a fireman, was also killed in the awful crash.

Seriously injured are: General Traffic Manager Randolph, General Passenger Agent Chesbrough, Chief Engineer Carrothers, Engineer Tom Jones, Fireman John Kennedy, Baggage Master Harvey, Chas. E. Whiting, passenger, Fred Moore, passenger.

It is believed he was poisoned.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 7.—The remains of James H. Montague, who died suddenly at Wood Lake, Ky., last Monday, will be exhumed at Georgetown Monday. Montague's brothers believe that he was poisoned that the $10,000 for which his life was insured could be secured. They intimate that a relative and a boarder are under suspicion. An examination of the dead man's stomach will be made.

A NUMBER OF BOYS

Confined in the Nebraska Industrial School Escape—All But Fifteen Re-Captured.

KEARNEY, Neb., Dec. 7.—Twenty-eight of the larger boys confined in the state industrial school near here, escaped Saturday night. The break was made from the dining-room and many of them carried the knives used at the table. The plan has been brewing some time, over a hundred being implicated and all would have escaped had not an attendant drew his revolver and threatened to shoot the first boy that started. Sunday all but 15 were recaptured. Those still out are the most desperate and are believed to be headed for Kansas. "Kid" Thrasher, the leader, was captured about midnight, but his main assistant, one Yates, of Omaha, is still at large. Some of the boys are armed with butcher knives and sugar beet knives, and will resist arrest if the opportunity offers.

DECEMBER MAGAZINES.

"As you see his face," writes Ruth McEnery Stuart in an article on the Creoles, "A People Who Live Amid Romance," in the December LADIES' HOME JOURNAL, "you will know that he [the Creole husband or father] realizes that no flower upon the lily-covered altar is half so fair or so fit for the temple's perfect adorning as his blooming wife and budding daughters, who sit in line beside him. If he does not think these things he is a dullard—or, maybe, only half-Creole. Perhaps his mother was an American, or Scotch. And then—? Perhaps he would not think them because they might not be true. They would be other things, other things just as fine and good, no doubt—they might even have rare beauty of a different type—but the Creole woman is a flower. She is magnolia or a jasmine—occasionally, a camellia—or, especially when there is a good warm drop of Spanish blood in her veins, she is a red, red rose—a rose too sweet to pass unloved but for her perfect dignity and a piquant hauteur that is as protective as any thorn upon a rose's stem."

"Properly speaking, or rather, narrowly speaking, the Creole is an American, born of French or Spanish parents or of both, and, strictly, both parents should themselves be foreign-born, but the Creole is often only the great-grandson of a Creole, and some of their families of purest blood could not reach the mother country without going back through three or four American-born generations."

Then there were children, conspicuous among them the vulgar little children of the not long rich, repulsively disagreeable to the world in general, but pathetic in the eyes of thinking men and women. They are the sprouting shoots of the gold-tree, beings predestined never to enjoy, because they will be always able to buy what strong men fight for, and will never learn to enjoy what is really to be had only for money; and the measure of value will not be in their hands and heads, but in bank-books, out of which their manners have been bought with mingled affection and vanity. Surely, if anything is more intolerable than a vulgar woman, it is a vulgar child. The poor little thing is produced by all nations and races, from the Anglo-Saxon to the Slav. Its father was happy in the struggle that ended in success. When it grows old, its own children will perhaps be happy in the sort of refined existence which wealth can bring in the third generation. But the child of the man grown suddenly rich is a living misfortune between two happinesses—neither a worker nor an enjoyer; having neither the satisfaction of the one nor the pleasures of the other, hated by its inferiors in fortune, and a source of amusement to its ethically and aesthetically better.—December Century.

While the familiar struggle of the Irish against the English continues to be in evidence wherever there are Irishmen, things have arrived at the pathetic stage in Ireland. To the stranger entering Dublin or Belfast it looks as if the island that had given letters to England had been repossessed by Britons in every business thoroughfare the natives that meet the eye are suggestive of England, Scotland, and Wales. The admixture of French, German, Italian, and Spanish names so common in England, is reproduced apparently in the same proportions.

When one takes up the leading daily newspapers enough is found to corroborate the opinion that the reappearing is an accomplished fact. In a recent issue of a Dublin Journal, "The Irish Times," there appeared in the advertisements 325 names—English, Welsh, Scotch, French, German, Italian, and Spanish—to 55 Irish names.

The owner of the Irish newspaper was born in Scotland, Sir John Arnott, Baronet, and the name of the founder, Knox is associated with a stirring period of Scottish religious history in the sixteenth century.

In the leading directory of Ireland—Thom's—there is found an abundance of material in favor of the same line of thought. The lists of landowners, magistrates, Protestant clergymen, and veterinary surgeons make poor account of distinctively Irish names. In the manufacturing districts of the country the paucity of Irish names is remarkable. From one end of the island to the other the great industries, with few exceptions, are operated by men whose names are not Irish.

English is the language of the country. It is taught in the public schools, and, with rare exceptions, exclusively spoken in the homes. Very few of the Roman Catholic clergymen in English-speaking Ireland are capable of preaching in the mother tongue, and even if they were, fewer still would be able to understand them. Within fifty years a great change has taken place in regard to the Irish language. Protestants and Catholics formerly knew something of it. At the popular watering places along the southwest coast, the children prattled in Irish and Irish was the language of the army of donkey-boys and bathing-box women. Now the donkeys are cudgeled by boys who use the English language and the younger bathing-box women are recognized for natives by the sweetness and softness of the "brogue."

In some of the remoter rural districts of Connaught, Munster, and Ulster, Irish is still spoken, but in the commercial and manufacturing centres it is virtually a dead language.—North American Review for December.
